plenipotentiaries, who have received full powers from their respective governments, appointed a committee to-day to draft a note to the Turkish plenipotentiaries explaining why the peace conference must now be considered broken off. It is hoped the draft will be ready for approval by the full delegation Monday night.

This action of the allies is part of a series of measures considered necessary in view of the pressure with which the Balkan delegates hope to obtain their object without resuming the war.

The meeting to-day lasted for an hour and a half. The course to be followed was given earnest consideration. Two distinct views were manifested—one for the immediate rupture of the negotiations, leading to a resumption of hostilities, and the other favoring a temporizing policy in order to avoid irrevocable steps. The latter course triumphed and a committee was appointed, consisting of one member from each delegation, as follows:

Michael Madjarov, Bulgarian minister at London; Professor Georgios Streit, Greek minister to Austria-Hungary; Count Vovnoyitch, chief of King Nicholas' Cabinet, representing Russia; M. Menges, French minister to Vienna; M. Vassiliou, Servian minister to France, with the addition of M. Politis, of the Greek delegation, owing to his knowledge of French and his thorough acquaintance with the situation in the Balkans.

Old Arguments Rehearsed.

General lines were laid down on which the note is to be drafted, comprising the arguments already set forth in the note of the 10th of September, demands the surrender of Adrianople and the Aegean Islands as an indispensable condition to the conclusion of peace.

That the policy of the allies is to go to the end, and does not intend to spare anybody. The delegates declared that the advantages to be derived from the resumption of hostilities would be in proportion to the risks they ran and the losses they incurred. They stated, unless absolutely forced to do so, it is realized that even a partial reverse would have grave moral and material consequences, apart from the loss of the Balkan Peninsula.

In addition, the fact is not overlooked that there is danger of Rumania advancing from the rear and of Austria imposing on Serbia and Montenegro her conditions for remaining neutral.

The only disadvantage in delaying decisive action is in keeping large armies inactive and on a war footing for a long time, thus heavily taxing both the financial and agricultural resources of their countries.

Loan for Turkey.

Accounts Confirmed. London, January 10.—(Reuters.)—Conservative people and watchers in London confirm the previous accounts of the revolt against the government and the shooting of the War Minister, Nazim Pasha.

The dispatch adds little to the details already known, but states that the autopsy on the officers killed disclosed that the bodies bore danger wounds, as if all were fired from the same direction, thus throwing doubt on the assertion that the killing was unpremeditated.
